

"MY OTHER WAS MY BEST FRIEND," GEORGE DIBBLE EXCLAIMS TO JURY

Stratford Authorities Believe Maniac in Their Hands May Be Slayer of Mrs. Dibble, Because He Talks of a Mother Killed.

Inquest Before Coroner Wilson Throws No Light on Mystery—Frank Dibble, Brother of George, Tells of Tension to Which Family Is Submitted.

"Well, I can't help what they say. All I can say is that my mother was the best friend that I had in the world," was the answer of George Dibble at the coroner's inquest yesterday afternoon when he was asked if he was aware that some people suspected him of the horrible crime by which his mother, Mrs. Sarah Dibble, came to her death last Friday morning.

The inquest came to a close after Frank Dibble, another son of the murdered woman, had testified.

It is understood that after the hearing, which lasted all day yesterday and up till noon today, Sheriff S. E. Hawley and State Police Officer Frank Verrell who are conducting the case, are pretty well satisfied that nothing was developed during the hearing that would lead to a clue upon which any kind of a case could be hung.

All through the inquest the neighbors and the members of the Dibble family were probed for the purpose of learning if there was any feeling in the family that might have provoked a quarrel, but nothing was shown, it is said, to warrant suspicion of anyone whose name has been connected with the case.

George Dibble while on the stand told a straightforward story of the finding of the body. How he had left the house about 10 o'clock in the morning just after his mother had come down stairs, and went all over the story of his actions on the fateful day, as he had done several times before for the police.

At the close of his testimony, after he had been made aware that some people had him under suspicion, he made the statement that he could not help what they said, and that his mother was the best friend he had in the world.

At the inquest this morning Grand Juror David L. Rhodes put in an appearance with Deputy Sheriff Stagg. These officers have a man in their custody who is apparently demented and who is either unable to tell of his whereabouts during the past week or is assuming the name of Henry Garrity and claims to have come from Providence, R. I. Garrity came out yesterday morning with his clothing drenched with water. He claimed that he had fallen into a river and that he had had nothing to eat for two days. In his ravings he talked of having killed his mother. When he was questioned closely he said a plank had fallen down in the barn and struck her on the head. The authorities are at a loss to understand his ravings and an effort will be made at once to trace the ravings of the man to see if they do not lead back to the vicinity of the Dibble house on last Friday.

John Kieley, who does odd jobs around the house, testified at the inquest this morning to seeing a man last Friday morning in the barn who struck the plank down on the head of the murdered woman. The stranger was all in shivers and that the beads of perspiration stood out on his face. The man said that he was very much frightened and that he wanted to go to a hospital. He

WRIGHTS HONORED IN HOME CITY

BIG BLOWOUT BY APPRECIATIVE FELLOW TOWNSPEOPLE AT DAYTON TODAY

Regular Fourth of July Toot Firing of Guns, Pounding Anvils, Shooting Firecrackers, Blowing Whistles and Big Bonfires Make Up Part of Noisy Celebration for Kings of the Air.

(Special from United Press.) Dayton, June 17.—This is "Wright Day" in Dayton and while the elder citizens are shaking hands and pinning badges on distinguished visitors the younger ones are firing guns, pounding anvils, shooting fire-crackers, blowing whistles and starting big fires. As far as the noisy phase of the celebration in honor of Wilbur and Orville Wright is concerned, it was all planned with major thoroughness by members of the committee who are directing the task of informing the "Kings of the Air" they are appreciated by their fellow-townsmen. Several days ago they arranged with the city authorities to have their whistles according to schedule. Under these arrangements as soon as the boilers of one factory were exhausted the crowd of people gathered for a review of the Federal and State troops and an exhibition parade by the fire department are scheduled for late this afternoon.

Decorated by a big reception committee Wilbur and Orville Wright rode to Van Cleve Park in an automobile that had been decorated with the colors of the city, members of the city court, board of education, city officials and members of the Wright Brothers Home Celebration Committee opened the ceremonies.

All the remarks at the Park were directed toward Wilbur and Orville Wright. Conrad J. Schmidt, president of the city council, greeted them first, as "Dayton's two most distinguished citizens." President Schmidt said that the Wright brothers had made a great contribution to the world and that it was most lamentable that there should be the least hint of a quarrel between the two brothers. George, who had lived with his mother for seventeen years. He said that they were apparently very happy together, and he regarded his brother as a very contented man.

He said further that he believed the murder of his mother was the work of a man who was in a terrible frenzy when he committed the crime because of the cuts and bruises found upon the body.

In speaking of his mother he said that she was very frugal and saving. That she would only wear the plainest of clothing, even when she had the money to buy the finest. He said that his mother was a very frugal woman and that she was very much devoted to her family.

John Kieley who testified before the coroner's inquest this morning was taken to Stratford this afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Plumb and Plumb took Kieley in an automobile this afternoon to the house of the murdered woman for the purpose of seeing if they can bring to his mind the recollection of anything that has transpired in his life during the past three or four days.

THIRTEEN YEARS OF HEALING FREE

Remarkable Showing of St. Vincent's Hospital During Years of 1907 and 1908.

Statement of Retiring President Relates Great Growth of Ladies of Charity and Large Amount of Work Done—Biennial Report Issued.

The second biennial report of St. Vincent's Hospital has been issued in an attractive, blue bound pamphlet, and covers with much completeness the work of the hospital for the past two years, during which period according to the report of the Sisters of Charity, St. Vincent's de Paul, 4,662 days treatment and care were given to patients free of charge. Also 70 families were visited and relieved; 299 families were relieved at the door and 106 baskets were distributed among the poor. During 1908, 288 free patients were cared for and in 1907, 92.

Sincere thanks are extended by the Sisters of Charity to the many friends who with every brick in the beautiful building as well as with all the good done within its walls. Touching reference is made to the death of Rev. Bishop Tierney and thanks is given to the Ladies of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul for their efficient services.

The report is made to the growth of the hospital which requires the erection of an East Wing. The plans for this structure have already been described in the Farmer.

The total number of patients treated during the biennial period was 1,915, of which 1,613 were discharged and 297 died. Sixty-eight deaths were persons who were in such a state they did not live 48 hours after being received.

Included in the pamphlet is the report of Mrs. John A. Hurley upon the work of the Ladies of Charity. Five hundred names have been added to the membership within the year. Each of 80 ladies has agreed to donate $10 or its equivalent to the treasury during 1909. The organization furnished bed and body linen to the hospital as well as much other material; endowed a free bed and furnished two outdoor wardens for tuberculous patients. The amount of work accomplished may be judged by the fact that 439 articles were made in which almost 2,000 yards of material were used. These figures do not include some hundreds of articles purchased ready made.

The good work done by the ladies under Mrs. Hurley's administration will be continued by Mrs. Michael H. Ford, the present president.

MRS GOULD WAS DRUNK AT DINNER

THIS TIME STEWARD TESTIFIES SHE DRANK TOO MUCH CHAMPAGNE

She Laughs at His Testimony Witness Also States that He Supplied Mrs. Gould With a Flask of Whiskey Every Night—Once She Came to Pantry in Night Dress for Some Liquor.

(Special from United Press.) New York, June 17.—Mrs. Howard Gould's alleged penchant for excessive indulgence in liquor was again made the chief weapon in her husband's suit for separation before Justice Dowling to-day. Andrew Frederickson who was a night watchman at Castle Gould Farm from September until December 1906 and from February to November 1907, was the first witness to-day. He said that he saw Mrs. Gould under the influence of liquor in November 7, 1906. He said he was making his rounds on the night of November 7 and discovered a figure in the kitchen garden, thirty feet from the gas house. Mrs. Gould came from the fire he said and entered the kitchen calling him later. It was during the conversation in the kitchen that he discovered that she had been drinking, he testified. She said she was angry and questioned and asked him many trifling questions about himself. Frederickson was not cross-examined.

Edw. Bechold, second steward on the Gould yacht Niagara, testified that during a voyage in December, 1905, he saw Mrs. Gould at the table every night. He said that he had seen her drunk on two occasions. "When the yacht was in Port Antonio," he testified said, "Mrs. Gould came to the pantry door in her night dress to get a drink of liquor. She was flushed and her hair was unsteady. The other time I saw her drunk was at a dinner in Kingston, when she drank too much champagne. When she started down stairs she had to hold on to the railing and she was very unsteady. She always drank more champagne than the others."

On cross-examination Bechold said he had seen Mrs. Gould at the table every night during the voyage. He said that the witness testified that once while the yacht was at Quarantine Mrs. Gould frequently advised with her lawyer.

On the night that Mrs. Gould came to the pantry for a drink of Bechold, John Berdu was with him. Counsel Shearn, for Mrs. Gould, got Bechold to admit that Berdu saw every night during the voyage. He said that during the cross-examination Mrs. Gould frequently advised with her lawyer.

T. Dodge testified that he was working as a carpenter at Castle Gould during the summer of 1902 and that one morning when he was working in the kitchen Mrs. Gould came to the door and discharged all the servants. "Her voice was loud, her manner was imperious and her face flushed," the witness said.

A three-cornered tilt between De Lancey Nicoll, counsel for Gould in the separation suit, and his opponent, Clarence Clemons Gould, Clarence J. Shearn, Mrs. Gould's attorney, and Justice Dowling, enlivened the trial of the case. Nicoll's counsel, Gould, so upset the equanimity of Shearn that a witness had to be excused while the lawyer regained his composure.

Nicoll tried to get into evidence letters that Melville D. Chapman, a Great Neck, L. I. broker, who was a guest of the Goulds on their yacht trip to the West Indies, had written to him. His wife in which, it was contended, Chapman had referred to his financial obligations to Gould. The court denied this during the discussion. Nicoll remarked that "this is just a part of the blackmailing tactics that have been used all through this case."

"I demand an apology," shouted Shearn who white with anger, had jumped to his feet. "Both remarks are out of the proper," sharply retorted Justice Dowling, "and in view of the many veiled charges that have been made here the remarks are impossible to be made. I want to say that this has gone far enough."

Shearn again demanded an apology of Nicoll, exhibiting such perturbation that the witness was temporarily excused. "I think that Mr. Shearn has taken my remarks too seriously," said Nicoll. "I have never thought that he himself was guilty of attempting to extort money from my client but his tone has. I apologize to the court."

Then his apology should be to Mr. Shearn, though I cannot demand this," replied the court. "I resent this statement by Mr. Nicoll," retorted Shearn, who then withdrew. I represent the other side in this case and I resent slurs at my client." Later Nicoll said to Shearn to Shearn he said: "Don't speak to me."

Chapman testified that he had seen Mrs. Gould intoxicated on the yacht several times. He said that it was easy to tell when she was intoxicated as at such times she was cross, disagreeable and troublesome while at other times she was kind and agreeable. He said that Mr. Gould had always treated her considerately, even when she was intoxicated. He said that at Santiago de Cuba, Gould threatened to discharge the entire crew just because the yacht was so turned that the sun shone in her eyes.

The deposition of James R. Cox, a bell-boy at the Carroll House at Lynchburg, Va., was next put in evidence. It told of seeing Dustin Farnum, the actor, in Mrs. Gould's room on several occasions.

RUSSIAN TORPEDO BOAT FIRES ON BRITISH SHIP FOR FAILING TO HALT

Just Before Meeting of Czar and Kaiser on German Yacht.

News of Affair, Which is Being Rigidly Censored, Has Occasioned Intense Excitement Throughout St. Petersburg and It Is Feared Most Serious International Complications May Result.

(Special from United Press.) St. Petersburg, June 17.—A report has just reached here that a Russian torpedo boat, one of the flotilla acting as escort for the Imperial yacht Standart on which the Monarch made the trip to the Gulf of Finley, fired on the British steamship Northburg, Captain Robertson, for approaching too close to Pitkpas Bay where the Czar and Kaiser are exchanging visits.

The Northburg was fired upon last night after the Russian boat had hailed her and warned her not to approach any nearer. The shell from the torpedo boat struck one of the steam pipes of the Northburg and an English sailor was injured. The news of the affair which is being rigidly censored, has occasioned intense excitement throughout the capital where it is feared the facts may be such as to bring on the most serious international complications.

CZAR MEETS KAISER WITH MUCH POMP

St. Petersburg, June 17.—Czar Nicholas and Emperor William met today in the Gulf of Finland aboard the German Imperial yacht Hohenzoller.

The meeting between the two rulers, which is expected to have great bearing on future European politics, was attended by much pomp and ceremony and was far from the "most friendly" indicated in preliminary reports.

As proof that politics will furnish the chief topic of discussion is the fact that the Czar is accompanied by Count Stolypin, Minister of Foreign Affairs, and Count Pourtales, the German Ambassador to Russia, and German military and naval attachés, while Foreign Minister Von Schoen and other close advocates of the Kaiser were with his suite.

The meeting took place in Pitkpas Bay, a small inlet on the southern coast of Finland about sixty miles from St. Petersburg. Both the royal yachts were under an escort of warships and as the two squadrons approached salutes in honor of the rulers were fired.

The Czar embarked in a steam launch and sped across the bay to the Hohenzoller on the deck of which Kaiser stood ready to embrace him. It is not known how long the meeting will continue. Two great state barges, one aboard each of the royal yachts, will take place and it is expected the conference will last until Saturday. Germany regards with deepest suspicion the new Tripartite Entente between England, Russia and France, and recent acts of hers have led her to believe that the Kaiser is seeking to ally himself with Russia and France from this alliance and attach them to her own powers. The short German, in the opinion of the Russian diplomats, is seeking to substitute her own supremacy for the present dominance of England.

That overtures to this end will be made in the meeting now in progress between the two rulers no one denies. The situation is not altogether pleasant to Russia who would like to maintain the friendliest relations with England, but who, through stress of national weakness, is forced to throw her support to the power most likely of gaining the ascendancy. And this power today appears to be Germany.

REPORT CREDITED.
Copenhagen, June 17.—The report that a Russian torpedo boat fired on the British freight steamer Northburg last night has not yet been confirmed, though it is generally credited. It is said that no protest has yet been lodged which indicates that the affair was of less seriousness than the early reports intimated. The early reports said that an English sailor had been wounded by the shell fired into the Northburg but no later dispatch says that no one was hurt.

Russian torpedo boats are guarding Pitkpas Bay with the utmost care.

JIM JEFFRIES GREETED BY BIG CROWD

Famous Fighter Given Royal Welcome When He Alighted from Train at Local Railroad Station Today

To Appear at Smith's Theatre Tonight In Six Round Bout With Sam Berger In Brief Interview He Tells of His Plans.

Despite the fact that every effort was made to keep secret the arrival time of James J. Jeffries, the undefeated champion fighter of the world, who appears at Smith's theatre tonight in a six round bout with Sam Berger, when the big Californian alighted from a New York express this afternoon he found a big crowd at the railroad station to welcome him.

Jeffries was accompanied by his wife, his manager and trainer, and after receiving the shouts of welcome by smilingly bowing his acknowledgments, he was hurried away to a carriage and driven to his hotel where he went at once to his room. It had been the big fellow's intention to take a run over the suburban roads, as he makes it a point to do a bit of road work every day, but as he was unable to reach here earlier he determined he would do his training stunt this morning in New York. For two hours he hit the roads north of the Bronx and he was in apple pie shape when he alighted from the train at the local station.

Jeffries received the newspaper men after reaching his hotel and talked of his plans. First let it be understood that Jeffries is a man of few words. He is not a valuable distributor of what is ordinarily termed hot air; on the contrary he carefully measures his utterances and speaks to the point.

It was Jeff who propounded the first question, "Am I to have the pleasure of a visit from Mr. Jack Johnson tonight?" he inquired.

Jeff simply said, "Let us see what the result of Johnson was to the effect that he would be in Bridgeport when Jeffries entered the arena to let his own eyes feast upon him. Jeff simply said, "Let us see what the result of Johnson was to the effect that he would be in Bridgeport when Jeffries entered the arena to let his own eyes feast upon him. Jeff simply said, "Let us see what the result of Johnson was to the effect that he would be in Bridgeport when Jeffries entered the arena to let his own eyes feast upon him."

Buckingham & Co., the well known business house, to Miss Cora Laws, a talented and popular young woman who has for some time been employed as a stenographer by the Union Typewriter Company, took place at 4:30 yesterday afternoon, quietly, at the home of the bride's father, Mr. F. A. Dillingham, pastor of The Church of the Redeemer, Universalist, Mr. and Mrs. Buckingham will reside in Bridgeport after they have returned from their wedding trip.

SITE FOR LIBRARY DONATED REDDING

(Special to The Farmer.) Redding, June 17.—A site for the Redding public library, which is now housed in the Unwapaug chapel, has been donated by Theodore Adams to a few days ago conveyed to the library association a lot of about three-quarters of an acre, located at Selleck's Corner, west of the Center. The site is not far from the town's geographical center. Mr. Adams took the deed in person to Mark Twain, president of the association, who thanked him for the gift which is more to the donor's credit from the fact that he is not a man of large means. The library has toward a building fund derived from entertainments and assessments levied by Mark Twain upon his guests. The Harpers recently donated a very fine collection of books which are now being catalogued by Mr. Grumman, the librarian. This makes a total collection of nearly two hundred books. The library has the promise of further contributions from other publishing houses. To provide for such a library building as the association has in view will require about $4,000.

CONSUL WYNNE'S DAUGHTER WEDS

London, June 17.—Miss Ida M. Wynne, daughter of Robert J. Wynne, the retiring American Consul General was married in the Brompton Registry to-day to Lieutenant Hugh Ronald French of the Tenth Dragoon Guards. Only the immediate families and a few intimate friends witnessed the ceremony. Miss Wynne was given away by her father and was attended by her sister, Ruth. A reception was given at the Savoy Hotel.

MONUMENT UNVEILED IN MEMORY OF PATRIOTIC AUTHOR

Hartford, June 17.—Before a distinguished array of military and civil officials and a large gathering of G. A. R. veterans, General George Haven of New London, Department Commander of the G. A. R., unveiled the monument in honor of the memory of Henry Clay Work, the author of "Marching Through Georgia," in Spring Grove Cemetery this afternoon.

Mayor James W. Cheney, chairman of the Memorial Committee, opened the ceremonies. The cemetery and the Rev. Joseph H. Twichell followed with a prayer. Addresses were made by United States Senator Morgan G. Bayley, Governor P. B. Weeks and Mayor E. W. Hooker. The principal address was delivered by Henry H. Kelley, Patriotic songs were rendered by the Choral Club of the city, assisted by the audience and the band.

PUNISHING PALMER FOR ANTI LILLEY FIGHT

Without explanation the General Assembly of Connecticut has indicated that it has no intention of continuing in public office George S. Palmer of New London, the man who led the fight of the manufacturers against the nomination and election of Gov. Lilley.

Mr. Palmer has been a trustee of the Connecticut Agricultural College. The terms of three trustees having expired the Senate committee yesterday reported a resolution naming Senator Alsop as a new trustee. Senator Letimer immediately moved tabling the resolution, until he could have a conference with other members, because he understood that with three candidates from that county. New London county would lose its representation on the board.

Senator Letimer made no specific reference, but it was thought he had in mind the fact that Mr. Palmer was dropped. The Senator is the nephew of Senator Palmer.

Senator Blakeslee objected to the motion to table out of courtesy to a fellow member. Mr. Letimer replied that he thought the matter could be straightened out if this resolution was tabled. It was suggested to him that one of the other resolutions which were to follow could be tabled. While it was not stated the debate seemed to indicate that Senator Alsop's name was being substituted for that of Mr. Palmer.

Middleton, chairman of the committee on Senate Appointment, objected strongly to tabling, so Mr. Letimer withdrew the motion and Senator Alsop was chosen.

When the resolutions naming Charles M. Jarvis of Berlin as another new member and C. A. Capen of Meriden as a re-appointment were named as other trustees, Mr. Letimer immediately moved to table and this was done.

WATCH FORECLIPSE THIS NIGHT AT 7

Get your smoked glasses out late this afternoon as the moon is to be perched on the horizon at 7 o'clock, the time of the eclipse of the moon. The eclipse is visible to most all the inhabitants of this planet. The darkening will not be total, but these partial eclipses are very interesting. These natives of Greenland, certain portions of Siberia, Alaska and British America will have the satisfaction of seeing the moon disappear for a time. The sun will be about setting seemingly in Fairfield when the eclipse is due to appear in this city, about 7 o'clock.

LONG ON WORK SHORT ON FUNDS

This is State of Affairs in Department of City Engineer—Zink Holds Up Bill.

Alderman Zink, Alderman from the 12th district, refused at the meeting of the Finance committee last night to allow the passage of a bill from McElroy & Kershaw, engineers, for $111.70. The bill came through the Police department and was approved by Commissioners Coughlin and Hurley. It was for the work done by the city engineer and the services of three men for two days locating fire alarm boxes.

Alderman Zink's refusal to O. K. the bill was based on the ground that the city charter which placed the city engineer on a salary basis says that all surveying and engineering work should be done by the city engineer. The bill was held up for further inquiry into the matter.

The department of the Police board said this morning that the Police department recently mapped out 180 new posts and that two maps were needed, one to show the day beats and one to show the night posts. He said the Police department secured the original maps from the office of the city engineer. The department was unable to fill in the posts on the maps and locate the fire alarm boxes, and red signal lamps at that time. Therefore the department, which wanted the map completed at once, got the work done outside.

The department of the engineer is crippled by lack of funds. Besides having to do regular summer work of furnishing grades for new streets and sewers to do this year, the engineer is having to do the same work for the Congress street bridge job, and since Director Biltz put on a corps of sidewalk inspectors property owners are being forced to do the work. The department is also having to do the work of establishing new lines for the 20 inch curbing to be laid in Main street. The department is so rushed that Engineer McKenna is obliged to work himself with his outside surveys and to do his office work evenings.

TAFT BOOM AT SUMMER HOTELS

Boston, June 17.—Captain Archibald Mott, military aide of President Taft, arrived at Boston early today to complete arrangements for the arrival of the President and his family the first week of July. The demands for rooms at the summer hotels have taken a great boom on account of the coming visit of the President. Telegraph and telephone cables have been installed in the President's summer residence and everything put in readiness for the arrival of the Executive.

Deaths and Funerals

Friends and relatives, including a large number of the business men of the city gathered this afternoon at 1562 Fairfield avenue to pay their respects to their friend and associate, Major William W. Starr. The services were quite simple, being conducted by Rev. William H. Lewis, rector of St. John Episcopal church, of which the deceased was a devout communicant. The interment was at the convenience of the family.

Funeral services over the remains of Henry Hubbard Porter were held this afternoon at his late residence, 388 Main street, being conducted by Rev. John DeFeu, pastor of the First Congregational church. Interment was in Mountain Grove Cemetery.

The funeral of Francis, infant son of John and Mary Hourigan, who died recently at the home of the parents, 283 Catherine street, after a brief illness with infantile trouble, was held this afternoon and attended by many friends and relatives of the parents. Many handsome floral tributes were noticed. The burial was in St. Michael's cemetery.
